

My name is Jane Clements. I have known Paddy for four years. I have seen this horse demo in person, many times and have even videotaped Paddy before and after his treatment. It is the most remarkable thing I have ever seen. Paddy has totally transformed from an old, sad and crippled animal to a fit, strong, young looking horse.

Before, it was painfully sad to look at Paddy, his expression was a grimace, haggard, and depressed. He was so stiff, the best he could do, with a great deal of coaxing, was run awkwardly, for maybe ten seconds. He was obviously in a lot of pain with his legs and joints. As well as the stiffness, he tripped and got cross when encouraged to move much. When he walked he lumbered awkwardly and was lame. Most of the time he just stood still munching grass, whilst his friend Dolly ran about and frolicked. Also, he was tormented by an awful skin condition, producing sores and scabs and excruciating itching, which he would spend long intervals rubbing against a tree for relief. His joints were enlarged and swollen. He was smaller and shrinking -- not like his former self, the enormous, strong Cob I had ridden about four years ago -- a very sad and desperate animal with a miserable future, or being put down (as vets had recommended) as his apparent alternatives.

A TERRIFIC TRANSFORMATION HAS TAKEN PLACE! I have seen Paddy run and run and run for ages, chasing Dolly, his three-year-old companion. I've seen him gallop up hill with an expression of exuberance and joy, carrying a fifteen stone man on his back, like he is saying, "Hey, give me more of this!" He is taller, muscled and proud. He looks way, way younger than his 20 years, like a young man, in his prime. His skin condition has gone! It completely disappeared in the few days between seeing him "before and after", for the first time. His coat is glossy, without the scabby, bald patches and his mane and tail are extraordinarily bushier, longer and lush. He looks so beautiful, sleek, strong and happy.

I rush from my home at the opposite end of Cornwall to see Paddy at every opportunity I get, and every time that I see him since he was taken care of, I see something new and profound about him. The last time it struck me even more that his musculature and physique is tuned, sinewy and brawny, like a race horse. He looks so fine and fit and happy now. WOW! ... So, what about all the other animals, suffering and afflicted by horrible illnesses and labeled as "showing inevitable signs of old age"? These animals could be young again and in the best of health like Paddy. What about all the animals with broken bones, deemed too expensive to put right and doomed to an early death? What about all the people who need help for whatever crisis they're in, ... and what about victims of severe fire burn?! Everybody has a reason to use this ... and to tell their dear ones about it.

This whole event is the most wonderful and exceptional experience I have ever encountered in my entire life. It brings, not only hope to all people and animals, suffering or dying, but solid, galloping proof of a way out of any crisis.
